Mission Outpost: Ann Arbor, Michigan

Ann Arbor is more than a great college town. It's a thriving multicultural center that represents a microcosm of the shifting spiritual landscape in the United States. It's a place where the traditional approach of presenting the gospel has lost traction with the people we most want to engage—those who've come to presume that they're either unwelcome in our congregations or that church has nothing relevant to add to their lives.

To reach a population weary of culture wars requires a clear view of a powerful and attractive center: Jesus and his vision of the kingdom of God.

Mission Internships: Learning by Immersion

This isn't a school of ministry. It's a hands-on experience where you have space to wrestle with major issues facing the church today: multiculturalism, science, gender/sexuality, and care for the environment. We invite you to transform your imagination about what church can be for the next generation and join us in practicing this Jesus-centered faith in day-to-day life and ministry.

Come and live here for 6- 24 months or consider our 3-month summer internship track. Interns receive a stipend and housing is provided. We also encourage you to get a part-time job so you can immerse yourself in the community. Come and field-test our crazy hope: that the gospel is big enough for the world you live in and that the church can really matter.
